

Imperial Valley Aerospace

Developing the region's airports and available airspace to attract engineering, manufacturing and research and development of the aircraft and spacecraft industries. Imperial County's assets that support these industries are as follows:

- Availability of uncongested airspace
- Proximity to restricted airspace
- Rural locations to facilitate rocket and jet testing
- An average of 360 days of clear flying weather per year
- Availability of affordable workforce
- Proximity to San Diego County's $1.3 billion Unmanned Aerial Vehicle (UAV) industry
- Proximity to Mexicali, BC Mexico which currently has 25 aerospace related companies with a workforce of approximately 7,500 engineers, technicians and operators (2)
